

First Nations Education for Allied Health Providers

PHN EDUCATION SESSION

Join our online webinar presented by Josh Fuller, the PHN's First Nations Community Engagement Officer, and Jake Gillies, Aboriginal Health Practitioner. Josh will introduce you to the PHN's First Nations Health Access Team and how they can support your Allied Health practice. Jake will discuss cultural safety, the role of an Aboriginal Health Practitioner and how they can support patients seeking Allied Health care holistically. We welcome questions ahead of the webinar and during the session.

SPEAKERS: Josh Fuller (PHN First Nations Community Engagement Officer) Josh is a proud Wiradjuri Man from Dubbo NSW and belongs to the Tubba gah people, the traditional owners of the Dubbo region. Josh has worked in community services across the state over 15 years and has a passion for helping people. He has delivered cultural awareness training for NSW Health across the state and brings a wealth of knowledge from the teachings of his family and the Aboriginal Community he belongs to.

Jake Gillies (Aboriginal Health Practitioner) Yaama my name is Jake Gillies, I'm a proud Ngjyampaa man who has strong family ties to the Yuwaaliyaay and Gomeroi/Gamilaraay people. I am an Aboriginal Health Practitioner who is passionate about providing holistic care within the community. I look forward to helping out the mob with their health Journey.

WHO: Allied Health Professionals, General Practitioners and Practice Nurses

WHEN: Tuesday 25th October 2022 from 6:30pm to 7:30pm

WHERE: Online via GoToWebinar

RSVP: Please CLICK HERE to register

